Page 7, Part IX-A, Summary of Direct Charitable Activities

Listed below is a short summary of the various charitable activities engaged in by the Foundation for a Sustainable Future (FSF) during the FYE 4/30/13:

Since inception, FSF has continued to work with a team of architects, engineers, builders and consultants to remodel the existing buildings in a pioneering effort called "living systems design." The buildings will model advanced concepts in green building. and produce their own energy through wind, sun and hydro-electric generation, burning no fossil fuels. During the fiscal year ending April 30, 2009, FSF saw the completion of 'Phase 1 Construction' of the integrated food, energy, and building systems at the farmstead, Teal Farm. During the fiscal year ending April 30, 2010, FSF saw the continued commissioning of the integrated energy, heating, and mechanical systems. This included testing and trouble-shooting the renewable heating and electrical systems. During the fiscal year ending April 30, 2011, the Teal Farm property was marketed for sale and FSF conducted private tours and consulting projects for industry leaders in building and energy system design. Property maintenance via advanced grazing practices, stewardship of an existing orchard, harvesting of wood for heating system, and woods road maintenance were all undertaken. As completed Teal Farm is a prototype for perpetual food, building, and energy systems that are responsive to climate change, fluctuating energy supplies, and a shifting global economy.

During the fiscal years ending April 30, 2012 and 2013, marketing efforts continued to sell the Teal Farm property.

The property's marketability materials were developed in concert with the Foundation mission which aided in an extensive public relations and marketing/research campaign.

FSF has taken a leadership role in challenging current practices and thinking regarding wind energy with the goal of creating a culture that has clear objectives regarding renewable energy.

The Foundation developed value-defense for high-yielding nutrient dense plantings that can yield income as well as regenerate ecosystems.

The Teal Farm's 8-acre integrated fruit, nut and fuel-wood orchard designed to model a perennial agricultural system for the Northeast underwent ongoing development.
